NAMING PHILOSOPHY

Every batch name is a real firearms term whose second meaning is an exact coffee fact — never decoration. Quick Draw is the fast first cup. Dual Wield needs balance. Double Feed is two shots in one chamber — a doppio. Ratatatat is the noise itself. Future reserve names follow the same rule: Stovepipe (moka/stovetop), Misfire (decaf), Ráfaga (rotating micro-lot: one burst, then it's gone).

BRAND LINE

Small batch. Fully loaded. Baja-born beans, San Diego attitude, shipped wherever you are. Twos are the brand motif — two cities, two sides of the border, two hands, two shots. Hecho entre San Diego y Baja California. A Baja Vibes Co. brand.

* SOURCING NOTE

Origins listed are target cup profiles, not locked contracts — final sourcing is set with the roaster. What must hold is each batch's flavor profile and roast level; origins can substitute (see the roaster brief on each page).

RULES EVERY BAG OBEYS

THE POUCH

Wide, square, structured flat-bottom pouch with folded top. Boxy proportions — never tall and narrow. Matte finish. 12 oz (340g), whole bean.

LAYOUT ZONES

- 1 — Logo strip: arched MATRALLETA mark, small, top.
- 2 — Art zone: batch typography, upper 3/4 only.
- 3 — Footer band: bottom 1/4, separated by a thin rule. Origin, roast, notes, net weight. Always clean, always readable.

BRAND PALETTE

-  Paper Cream — #F2DDC5 · backgrounds, light bags
-  Kraft Tan — #D9B98F · flagship bag
-  Kraft — #B08355 · rules, secondary accents
-  Espresso — #2C1E14 · ink, dark surfaces
-  Brick Red — #B23F2B · brand accent, COFFEE CO.
-  Vivid Red — #D93A2B · Ratatatat bag only

LOGO RULES

The arched MATRALLETA + red COFFEE CO. mark appears small at the top of every bag — the batch name is the star, the brand is the signature. Never stretch, never recolor the red except to cream on dark bags. The batch typography must never imitate the arch.

TYPOGRAPHY

Batch names: hard-edged, angular block capitals — machined, not brushed. Each batch's type BEHAVES like its name (mirrored, jagged burst, single slash, doubled ghost). Info text: small caps, wide letter-spacing, always in the footer band.

DIFFERENTIATION LOGIC

The set shares everything except: bag color, type behavior, and one unique element per batch (STRONG CUT tag / doubles spec line / citrus accent / blend line). Shelf order runs the roast spectrum: cream → kraft → black → red. Quiet → composed → technical → loud.

DUAL WIELD

CONCEPT

The anchor of the roster and the answer to “which one do I start with?” Dual Wield is about balance — dual wielding only works if you're balanced, and the two hands are the proof. Simple and straightforward, done exceptionally well — the composed anchor the wild bags stand against.

COLORWAY

- Kraft Tan — Bag · #D9B98F
- Ink Black — Type · #1A1A1A
- Brick Red — Accents · #B23F2B

TYPOGRAPHY BEHAVIOR

Composed power. “DUAL WIELD” splits into two mirrored stacked lines — hard-edged block capitals, perfectly balanced left/right. Two crossed diagonal strokes behind the type, controlled, symmetrical. This bag is the calm one the wild ones stand against.

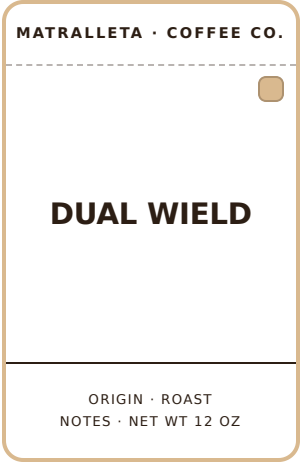

ROASTER BRIEF — THE CUP THAT MUST HOLD

Balanced, sweet medium roast. Ask what the house blend base is — a tuned version of an existing balanced blend beats sourcing from scratch. Any Mexico/Colombia/Central American combination that cups sweet and even.

PRODUCT SHOT PROPS

Honey dipper and one cinnamon stick beside scattered beans.

RATATATAT

CONCEPT

The batch named after the noise. Ratatatat is the aggressive dark roast — maximum intensity, Mexican chocolate heat, the bag that breaks formation. While the rest of the shelf stays kraft and cream, this is the only full-color bag: bright red, impossible to ignore.

COLORWAY

- Vivid Red — Bag — the only full-color bag · #D93A2B
- White — Type · #FFFFFF
- Cream — Tags & fine print · #F2DDC5

TYPOGRAPHY BEHAVIOR

Manga sound-effect energy. “RATATATAT” stacked in jagged offset lines like a gunfire burst — hard-edged angular white block letters with clean cut edges (not brushed), thin white speedline starburst behind. Type jitters off-baseline like recoil. Small cream STRONG CUT tag.

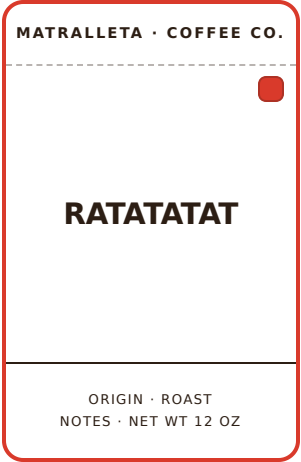

ROASTER BRIEF — THE CUP THAT MUST HOLD

Dark roast with enough body to carry cocoa and a chili edge. Mexican green preferred (the brand needs at least one genuinely Mexican-grown batch); Guatemala or Sumatra as fallbacks.

PRODUCT SHOT PROPS

Dried red chilis and dark cacao nibs beside scattered beans.

QUICK DRAW

CONCEPT

The silence before Ratatatat's noise. Quick Draw is the bright, fast light roast — citrus and honeysuckle, the first cup of the morning. Its bag is the emptiest of the four on purpose: one clean slash of type on near-blank cream. Speed reads as restraint.

COLORWAY

- Pale Cream — Bag — the emptiest bag · #F4EAD6
- Ink Black — Type · #1A1A1A
- Citrus Orange — One tiny accent only · #E07A2F

TYPOGRAPHY BEHAVIOR

laijutsu — the single perfect cut. “QUICK DRAW” in sharp black block letters sliced by one clean diagonal slash line across the face. Vast empty space, one thin speedline, one small drop of citrus orange. Nothing else. The negative space IS the design.

ROASTER BRIEF — THE CUP THAT MUST HOLD

Washed, bright, fruity light roast with real acidity. Ethiopia classic; Kenya or Colombian Huila substitute cleanly. What cannot change: high acidity, citrus/floral cup.

PRODUCT SHOT PROPS

A curl of orange peel and small white blossoms beside scattered beans.

DOUBLE FEED

CONCEPT

Named for the malfunction where two rounds feed into one chamber — and espresso is secretly all doubles: the doppio serving, the 1:2 brew ratio. This is the enthusiast's bag, the one for people with machines, and every design element on it is doubled.

COLORWAY

- Matte Black — Bag — the darkest bag · #1C1713
- Cream — Type · #F2DDC5
- Brick Red — Misregistered echo layer · #B23F2B

TYPOGRAPHY BEHAVIOR

Double vision. “DOUBLE FEED” printed twice in offset ghost layers — cream type with a red misregistered echo behind it, like a print run that fed twice. Twin vertical stripes down the sides. Everything on this bag comes in pairs.

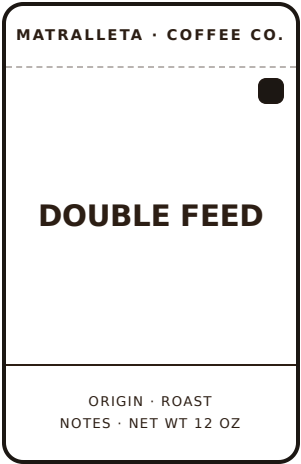

ROASTER BRIEF — THE CUP THAT MUST HOLD

Low-acid, chocolatey, syrupy espresso base that pulls sweet at a 1:2 ratio. Brazil natural is the default; Honduras or a Brazil-forward blend works identically.

PRODUCT SHOT PROPS

Two identical espresso cups side by side beside scattered beans.

LAYOUT REFERENCE
